Future of Forestry in Maine-- I've got 99 Problems and the Trees Ain't One

The theme of the 2018 MESAF annual meeting is the history and future of the forest industry in Maine. After a downturn in the industry and rough market conditions for the last decade, there appears to be a glimmer of increased demand for forest products.

The MESAF fall meeting will look at the future of the industry through the eyes of professional foresters, mill owners and logging contractors to gain insight as to what the next decade might bring.
